Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 13 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain spreading in Wednesday turning to snow in places.

Today:
Dry, fairly bright over northeast, but becoming cloudy. Rain spreading to Lochaber and Western Isles in morning, turning to snow as spreads further inland, at least over the higher ground. Local freezing rain and ice. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Tonight:
Rain, with snow in places, mainly across Badenoch and Strathspey, though not reaching Caithness until the early hours. The west coast and Isles dry before morning. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Thursday:
Cloud and rain gradually clearing East Highland through the morning with brighter weather following to the west, bringing sunshine and a few showers. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Dry, cold start Friday, rain, hill snow in afternoon. This clearing on Saturday then bright and breezy with some showers for the rest of the weekend.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.